

Gifts of Securities

Giving the gift of publicly traded securities to Food For The Poor Canada allows you to make a lasting and impactful contribution for families in the Caribbean. Gifts of securities are an opportunity to turn assets into instant donations to Food For The Poor Canada.

By donating stocks that have increased in value, stock options, mutual funds, and shares, donors do not pay taxes on capital gains, and can obtain a tax receipt at fair market value for the securities, reducing their taxes paid and increasing their impact with a larger gift.

Why Food For The Poor Canada?

Food For The Poor Canada is an organization that works in aid and development in the Caribbean and Latin America. We focus on five main areas of development and sustainability: building homes for families to thrive in, building schools for children to gain access to quality education, creating livelihood projects to help sustain families and individuals and provide business development opportunities, providing food to help feed families and children, and providing hospitals and clinics with needed health equipment and medicines. Our goal is to help strengthen and sustain communities, and we work closely with local partners where the aid is provided.

Over the years Food For The Poor Canada has built 30 schools, 80 homes, and delivered over $27,000,000 worth of food, medicines and educational supplies to Haiti and Jamaica. Your contribution ensures that we work to transform communities with sustainable and impactful projects.

Benefits of Donating Securities

Gifts of securities are a beneficial alternative to cash gifts. Gifts of appreciated securities provide lucrative tax incentives with the elimination of capital gains taxes.
